

Vietnam Journal of Public Health

Bi-annual Publication of Vietnam Public Health Association (VPHA)

The idea of publishing VJPH English Edition was born out of the desire to support Vietnamese junior and mid-level researchers to get acquainted with international publication processes and gradually build confidence to submit to international journals. Our long-term vision is for VJPH English Edition to become an internationally recognized journal in the field of public health. At this stage, the journal will publish two issues per year, and will be available both online and in hard copies.

CALL FOR PAPERS

VIETNAM JOURNAL OF PUBLIC HEALTH ENGLISH EDITION

INAUGURAL ISSUE

Submission deadline: July 15, 2013

The Editorial Board welcomes authors to submit their manuscripts as policy commentaries, original research papers drawn from quantitative and qualitative studies, systematic review and meta-analysis, review of books or PhD dissertation, and report of lessons learned from public health programs. Quality manuscripts on any topics related to public health, in Vietnam and beyond, will be considered for publication. Three members of the Editorial will screen all manuscripts before sending selected ones through double blind peer-reviewed process.

The Inaugural issue will be published in time for the 4th Asia Pacific Conference on Public Health which will be organized in Nha Trang City, Vietnam on November 21 and 22, 2013. The theme of the conference is "Climate Change and Population Health" which timely reminds us that climate change has been affecting, and will continue to affect, the health status of different generations and population groups, patterns of morbidity and mortality, the rich-poor health gap, social stability, and geo-political security. The VJPH Editors therefore especially welcome papers and commentaries that address issues related to the effects of, as well as the responses to, climate change and how they contribute to protecting population health in Vietnam and beyond.

To enable the Editorial to plan for the first issue, authors interested in submitting their manuscripts should send an email to the address below indicating their intent. The subject line should include: "VJPH Inaugural Issue". For more information on style guide for the journal, please see the attached author guide or check out the instruction on the journal website:
